Sponsorship Offer to KGB

Hi!

Sorry to interrupt you from the already busy life you have out there in your club, but I'm writing with the sponsorship suggestion that will make your club achievements even more outstanding.

I'm Daniel Brown, from CustomWritings.com.

The key reason why I'm writing to your club is that we both share the same values – offering possibilities of constant development for students. While you are into sports/music/student life/student support/technology, our service helps with essay writing – the regular headache of all students. With the samples that we offer students can save time on writing papers and learn better writing in general, thus maximizing academic score and personal performance.

So, we'd like to spread the word about our service through sponsoring your club. In any way convenient for you. Think what could boost your club power. Flyers, perhaps? Website update? Snacks for meetings? Outfits?

Let me know what kind of support you'd like to receive and we'll be happy to provide for you.

Hello Brian,

Thank you for reaching out to Kilford, Bradley and Gayle student dentistry organization! After consultation with relevant subcommittees of our organization, namely, the Committee to Assassinate the President and the Committee to Triage Replies and Organize Logistical Logistics, we have decided that we're interested in conversing with you about this sponsorship offer. As a dentistry organization, our goal is to promote TEETH! Please write back with more details about your offer, and what you think you could do to sponsor TEETH in our organization.

Looking forward to working with you!

Many thanks in advance!

Dear Clint,

We have more question. Has your team at CustomWritings ever worked with a Dentistry Organization before?

Yours in teeth,

Vatican Running out of Bling

Ellen Seeser, Chaotic Wholesome Correspondent

New reports from Vatican City indicate that the tiny country-within-a-country is, in the words of its leadership, “running out of bling.”

“Many people may not realize this, but bling is essential to the smooth running and, indeed, existence of the Vatican,” Cardinal Dolan told reporters during the Q&A portion of 5 P.M. mass this Saturday. “However it may have seemed in years past, the Holy See’s supply of bling isn’t going to last forever and currently it’s getting dangerously low.”

When asked to clarify his last comment, ‘dangerously low,’ Cardinal Dolan tugged at collar nervously. “I don’t want to say too much. It’s not really my place,” he said. “But let’s just say... there are a lot of saints down there, underground. And you’d be a fool to imagine they aren’t hungry.”

Such a ruckus and hullabaloo followed this pronouncement that the Cardinal was forced to leave the mass for a bit while things calmed down.

“This is outrageous,” said one parishioner sitting in the second row from the front. “I give five percent of my income to the Church every year, and they can’t manage to sate the dry, dead souls of the ancient saints? Talk about mismanagement! Talk about corruption!”

Discussion of the issue soon gained traction online, especially on Vatican-sponsored reddit board r/catholics. The following morning, it was on this message board that a Vatican representative conducted an AMA to clear up whatever questions the Cardinal’s earlier statements may have raised.

Yes, His Eminence’s characterization of the situation is correct, wrote the representative, Fr. Mario. Bling is much needed here at the Vatican. We used to have a large stockpile, but at this point we’re getting down to metric tons in the single digits.

How bad is the situation? Why can’t the Vatican purchase more bling? Why can’t the Vatican purchase more bling? asked one user. Fr. Mario responded: It would be safe to call this a crisis. And it has become more and more difficult in recent years to get our hands on the levels of bling that we need. I’m afraid our rampant consumption has been increasing the price of gold for a while now.

What happens if we run out? Fr. Mario responded to another inquirer. It’s never happened before. We simply don’t know. However, I have been told that once in 1880 the Saint Feeders forgot to feed St. Pius I for a month and by the time they figured it out there were only two official Saint Feeders left allkjddddd

Father Mario’s AMA then ended, slightly ahead of schedule. He could not be reached for further comment.

The gofundme “Buy Bling for the Vatican,” started soon after Dolan’s statement, is currently funded at $250,000. Church leaders, however, advise interested parties to contribute to the cause through direct donations of bling items at the seat of their local diocese.
