Planet Earth Is Angry, Has Activated Its Defense Mechanism

THE WONDERFUL NEW WORLD, 2018

Here's how a borderless, extreme poverty free World looks like, for those who wonder why not.

It has taken me 16 years to be precise to come up with the design of The New World. Like the vision of the New Indies in the imagination of Christopher Columbus, here is not only how I imagine the future of Earth, but how I anticipate it based on the ability to project and therefore inherently predict that I learned studying financial economics at Universidad Carlos III and financial engineering at the University of California at Berkeley. Many may wonder why the current World is stuck in the current statu quo with the current World order and an apparently unwilling to change political and corporate establishment. The reason is simple: it is running an obsolete operating system based on politics, the democracy of the nation state and corporate capitalism based on publicly-traded corporations, stock markets and international mobility/tax minimization.

Nation-states? I'd say they are no longer efficient, that they no longer matter, except for few instances such as Brazil or China with large populations speaking a same language and sharing a same culture and a market economy large enough to take advantage of economies of scale. My native Spain is a nation of nationalities, with four historical nationalities (nacionalidades históricas) recognized in the 1978 constitution: Catalunya, Euskadi (Basque Country), Galicia and Andalusia, the latter the least obvious. The World will remain a World of nationalities but not of nation-states, oftentimes small and inefficient. Nationalities are equivalent to ethnicities. Take for instance the small republic of Albania where I have lived for the past four years, it is both a nation and a nationality. Albanians are a small, homogeneous ethnic group with their own culture and language, as such their nationality will not only perpetuate but also thrive. However it is absurd that such small republic, one of Europe's poorest remains today a nation-state running its own currency, its own Ministries and even large network of Embassies, with a President and a Prime Minister. The Administration in Albania is mastodontic suffering from atrophy, it is like having a body with a head ten sizes what it should be. The same applies in the Balkans to Macedonia and Kosovo, to Serbia and Montenegro, but nationalities, not nations, maintain the hatred of centuries past and are as a result unable to cooperate. Spain in the meantime has to let the Catalans go and emancipate -as I will explain in a subsequent piece- and become the England of Reypública, influencing but not imposing. The Catalans are fed up with Castilian intrusion and expansionism. I am not surprised. The New World has thus far 38 Fictoin States. As I defined on The Huffington Post in 2016 "A Fiction State is the aggregation of at least two-nation states embracing a philosophy of maximum integration in the shortest time interval, as such it belongs in the realm of the imaginary and is only a long-term possible future -eventually the very best- among the many possible".

Integration must be maximum in the shortest time available. It must be maximum because any other possibility would be similar to wasting resources, and as it is quintessential today there is no room for waste so long as billions remain hungry, uneducated, lacking water, sanitation, healthcare and education. Nation-states can as a result be grouped according to certain criteria, for instance:

I have no clue what this means, nor why someone wanted KGB defectors to know this.
