

PRAVDA?

The Official(?) Newsletter of the KGB

Editor: Nathan Gaynor
ngaynor@andrew.cmu.edu

Price: $700 Trillion
Volume 29, Issue 8 - December 8, 2025

INVESTIGATION INTO CAMPUS DETERIORATION

Many reports have been submitted about the recent destructive events occurring around CMU campus. It seems like the entropy is rapidly increasing across the school. Why is this happening? Many theories have been suggested, but no conclusive answer has been found. Pravda? would like to put our foot into the ring and give our thoughts behind why CMU is falling apart. First, let us examine the evidence. The principle and most memorable instances of destruction are the floods. Doherty and Wean have both had recent incidents of water falling from the ceiling. These buildings have been known to flood, but the sudden, practically simultaneous occurrence of these events has been rather suspicious. Some may say “the pipes burst.” This is a lie they tell to hide the truth from you. We will see that few can actually take the truth. We can see some images showing the before and after of these incidents. A humble trash can predates the rain, showing the admin knew what could be coming. Strange plastic tubing appeared after the Doherty flood. Some may think these were to

It's Raining in Wean

It's Raining in Doherty

The Calm Before the Storm

I don't even know contain loose water. Some are fools. What else could these be containing? Another sight is this paper towel dispenser. Why is it like that? Perhaps so that paper towels could be reached from a higher distance. One thing all of these incidents have in common is their location. Doherty and Wean. What has cursed these buildings? Their strange architectural choices can't account for this sudden influx of chaos. What, then, can this be? Well, what else do these events have in common? It is the ceiling. Yes, the ceiling. The water has come from the ceiling. The tubes connect to the ceiling. The trash lies below the ceiling. The paper towel dispenser can be reached from the ceiling.

Strange Paper Towel Dispenser

We are all familiar with the Doherty creature. But less are aware of the Wean gremlin. Like Yin and Yang, these two forces have balanced each other since time immemorial. However, the balance is key. Pravda? believes that one of these entities has disappeared, disrupting this precious balance. After some investigation, we believe that the Wean gremlin has disappeared. This investigation however, must remain classified for now (out of fear of the Doherty creature). This absence has let the creature infest the ceiling spaces of Wean, extending its power and influence. This is tiring work, and if the Doherty creature is known for one thing, it's its perspiration. The stairway to hell is so hot and the creature needs to cool down. We believe that the influx of exercise for the creature is the cause for this flooding. The water is not just water, but sweat. The tubes are an attempt to capture the creature coming out of the ceiling. The paper towel dispenser is like that because the creature reaches down from the ceiling to dry off. This increase in activity has affected other buildings too. The construction in CFA and Hunt has gone on for months longer than expected. The chaos radiating from Doherty and Wean increases the entropy around campus. CMU has tried to hide this, blaming the pipes. But we know the truth.

